EDITORIAL NOTES.

Gov.-elect Douglass of Massachusetts built his fame on a just-forgotten foundation. Next to Lydia Pinkham he is probably the most widely known citizen of the Bay state.

It has been stated that "the late" Judge Parker bore a striking facial resemblance to W. L. Douglass, the $3.50 shoe man just elected governor. There is certainly no evidence that the resemblance was noted in Massachusetts.

Democrats in the north should "possess their souls in patience," as the governor-elect of Massachusetts would say. The official count may yet show that the democratic vote is entitled to rank numerically with that of the prohibitionists.

Governor Jennings' Thanksgiving proclamation bears a striking literary resemblance to Mormon Joe Smith's Epistles to the Unwashed, and is a close extravaganza in canting measure to the whang-doodle utterances of Apostle Dowie of Zion. City of the lace foundry. After reading the last clause of verse three one is apt to forget himself, imagine he is in a synagogue and exclaim, "Selah!" If the governor, after he retires from office in January, would but consent to put his impressive religio-comic oration to commercial use he could make dollars where he will get dimes in that Jacksonville trust company. He'd make a lolly-pop sponser for a fake religion.

The Jacksonville Metropolis asks, "Who was it that said 'fools rush in where angels fear to tread'?" Might ask Jemmett Wolfe, provided you can locate him.

The people are rapidly accommodating themselves to that previous condition of trust subordination imposed by the late republican election.

The only defeated democrat in Florida is J. Emmet Wolfe, of Pensacola, candidate for State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and he was badly defeated. However, the successful candidate is a democrat—Jacksonville Metropolis.

Come off, Willie. You know better than that. There was, and could have been, but one democratic candidate for the office of Superintendent of Public Instruction, and that candidate was W. M. Holloway, who was elected by an overwhelming majority over the combined vote of O'Neil, republican, and Wolfe, independent. It is conceded that Wolfe was formerly a democrat, but it is a rule of the Florida democracy that when a democrat decides to buck the regularly constituted party nominee and become a candidate against such nominee, why, that moment he becomes an independent, with all the party odium attached to the person and candidacy that the term "independent" or "bolter" implies. This rule also applies with equal force to all democrats who in any way stand sponsor to such independent candidate, or give him moral or political support. No, No. Wolfe is an independent, and such an insignificant one that he didn't even poll half the independent vote of the state.

The late republican candidate for Superintendent of Public Instruction, O'Neil, must surely get some comfort out of the fact that he made the Wolfe hit the dirt in Escambia county—the county in which the Wolfe lives and has his independent being.

A HEAVY DIET.

What the Pike in Tipperary Waters Like Most as Food.

There is a professional fisherman of my acquaintance in Tipperary who kills many pike during the winter months, for which he finds ready sale in the town. He told me of one customer of his who was in the habit of so beating him down in price that he felt justified in resorting to somewhat questionable means to increase the weight of his fish. In the manner of the winner of the stakes in the celebrated "Jumping Frog" sporting event, he would introduce some weighty substance into their interior, stones, bits of iron railing, etc.

Once he went so far as to stuff two old handless flatirons he had picked from a refuse heap down the gullet of one before taking it to his customer, who, having weighed it carefully and, after much haggling, paid him a fraction less per pound for it than he might have perhaps obtained elsewhere. Meeting him next day, he was instantly aware there was trouble in the wind by the opening remark, "What do pike feed on, Paddy?" "Och and indeed, your honor, but there's mighty little that comes amiss to them icks," he answered. "Froms and fish, sticks and stones, they like well, but they would give their two eyes for flatirons."—English Country Gentleman.
